HER SIX-FOOT SON

Mahlon Leonard, a Young Giant Astray, Is Sought by Parents.

Mahlon Leonard, the son of William H. Leonard, of No. 106 Speedwell street, somewhere in this great city seeking

He has been missing from home since last Tuesday, and his parents are extremely anxious to hear from him, so if any reader of The Evening World happens to see a lonesome-looking, tall youth strolling along the Great White Way or wandering through any of our side streets, kindly inform num that his presence is desired in Morristown to relieve the distress of an anxious mother and father, and wor-led brothers and sisters.

Mahlon grew so tall that he concluded a year ago that he was too big to go to school any longer and he quit. Since then he has been doing odd jobs for the members of the Morristown Golf Club, where he has been a great favorite because of his willingness to work.

Of late, however, he had been obliged to continue doing what he termed boy's work as ms ambition tended to higher things. The boy's father is a prominent contracting carpenter but all efforts to engage him in that tradeproved futile.

He left home, presumably to go to the golf club on Tuesday morning last but has not been heard from since. No fears are entertained for the vouth's safety, but his parents are distressed over his absence and desire to hear cluded a year ago that he was too big
